Course Overview

The disputes among the corporates these days, are increasing rapidly and the resolution required for the disputes are being widely discussed within organizations. The competency in dispute resolution is mandatory for all professionals working in any organization. Commercial dispute resolution strategies have evolved rapidly in the past 20 to 25 years. Dispute resolution methods discussed in this course are mediation, negotiation, litigation, adjudication, conciliation and arbitration. The arbitration remains the primary dispute resolution mechanism in international trade. Arbitration and all ADR processes, which are normally out-of-court processes. Court proceedings, arbitration and ADR are complementary processes. This course will emphasize arbitration, as arbitration has become a frequently used method for resolving disputes. The standard conditions of contracts also give more priority to the arbitration as a powerful tool to resolve the disputes prior to a court proceeding. The arbitration is applicable when the amicable settlement becomes invalid. However, the choices of the dispute resolution methods should be according to the circumstances surrounding each contract. This course will provide a holistic education/training to the delegates for the best practice in dealing with the dispute resolution methods as alternatives to court proceedings that are now commonly used to prevent and settle business disputes in an international context. In order to understand the legal aspects of dispute resolution techniques, it is essential for all the employers, consultants, contractors to train their employees on the procedures involved in the arbitration and dispute resolution methods.
