Introduction and Course Overview

Your leadership team must have a solid understanding of the benefits and approaches used by top performers to achieve world-class equipment reliability and maintenance organization efficiency. If a maintenance program is to succeed, support must be developed throughout the entire organization. A key attribute of world-class organizations is the leveraging of the skills, knowledge, and energy of every last member of the organization.

This Course highlights the essential steps necessary to develop a reliability culture and enhanced commitment by providing the correct maintenance leadership. The tools and techniques are introduced through a mixture of coursework, case study examples and group activities
